"MAKING COLLEGE & CAREER COUNT" AT ROSATI-KAIN HIGH SCHOOL Program will help seniors learn success strategies for life after high school

St. Louis -- Making It Count will give its "Making College & Career Count" presentation to Rosati-Kain seniors and their parents, on February 10, 2009.

"Making College & Career Count" is designed to help students begin to think about their next steps upon graduation and what they need to accomplish throughout the upcoming years in order to maximize their opportunities for future success. The program also addresses important issues such as time management, choosing career paths, gaining experience through internships and meaningful work experience and study skills.

"Graduation from high school is a key transition period in a student's life," said Making It Count's vice president and general manager, J.R. Cifani. "Our goal with this program is to provide a success map so that students can successfully navigate the transition from high school to the college or career of their choice."

Making It Count is an educational service provider for students and parents, and a business unit of Monster Worldwide. The "Making College & Career Count" program will be presented to 650,000 high school seniors nationwide during the 2009 spring semester. For more information on key content and supporting materials, please visit <http://www.makingitcount.com>. The Web site offers a wide variety of tools and resources for current and future high school students.

"We are fortunate to have an opportunity to bring resources like this one to our R-K families," said Mrs. Judi Timmons, a counselor at Rosati-Kain.
